City Offers Informational Webpage on Proposed 2019 Bond Program

New Braunfels, TX — New Braunfels residents can keep up with the progress of the proposed 2019 Bond Program with the availability of a dedicated webpage designed to keep citizens up-to-date throughout the process — www.nbtexas.org/Bond2019.

A variety of topics are available, including information about upcoming committee and community meetings, a list of potential projects under consideration, resource documents and a roster of committee members. Resource documents include master plans and feasibility studies relevant to the potential projects and provide detailed, pertinent data.

The proposed 2019 Bond Program development process:

January – March 2018

BAC develops recommend projects list for City Council

April – September 2018

Council selected projects to undergo preliminary engineer and evaluation

September – October 2018

BAC receives projects preliminary engineering reports and evaluations and finalizes 2019 Bond Program recommendations for City Council

October 2018 – February 2019

City Council finalizes the 2019 Bond Program projects and call for a May 2019 election

As the process progresses and moves through different stages, the webpage will be continually updated, and citizens are encouraged to check in frequently to keep abreast of the current status in the development of the potential 2019 Bond Program, and to learn about ways they can participate in the process.
