Former White House Usher to Speak at New Braunfels Public Library

New Braunfels, TX – Imagining life inside the White House is one thing, but it’s quite another hearing about it from someone who worked there for eight years.

Christopher Emery – a White House Usher in the Reagan and H. W. Bush administrations – is coming to the New Braunfels Public Library on Thursday, May 23, at 7 p.m. to discuss his 2017 book, “White House Usher: Stories from the Inside.”

As an usher, Emery was the junior member of a four-person office sharing the duties of overseeing the mansion and managing the entire residence staff of 89. The office is largely responsible for the proper execution of events, the maintenance of the house and grounds, and the redecoration of the private quarters – when a new family arrives, according to the Washington Post.

“Join us to hear fascinating stories behind the White House doors,” said Adult Services Librarian Jodi Brown. “This author talk was recommended by Police Chief Tom Wibert. Emery’s talk will be approximately one hour, with time for questions at the end. He will also have copies of his book to sell.”

This program is free and open to the public.
